Cultural Background. Before the flowering of the classic Greek architectural style in the mainland there were two important periods of development in building that had come before. The Minoan (c. 2600–1100 B.C.E.) and Mycenaean (c. 2800–1100 B.C.E.) civilizations flourished in the island of Crete and in mainland Greece for close to 2,000 years. Many of their accomplishments in art and architecture were unknown to the Greeks of the seventh and sixth centuries B.C.E. Source for information on Minoan and Mycenaean Architecture: Arts and Humanities Through the Eras ... Â Reynold Higgins, Minoan and Mycenaean Art. Rev. ed. (Oxford: Oxford University Press, 1981). Like the Minoans before them, Mycenaean artists became expert engravers and created miniature masterpieces on rings and seals. Early examples follow Minoan traditions of religious scenes and mythological creatures or hunting animals. Later examples show the stylized flowers and plants seen in pottery decoration, and the form is different, small squares of gold being typical. One of the finest rings is from Tiryns and shows a seated goddess being approached by a procession of four demon-like creatures bearing offerings. Another medium for the engraver’s art was the bronze blades of swords and d Minoan and Mycenaean Art book. Read 7 reviews from the world’s largest community for readers.
