Map of the 1915 Armenian Genocide in the Turkish Empire

(Based on maps prepared by Z. Khazarian for the Armenian National Delegation and Raymond H. Kevorkian and Eric Van Lauve for the Bibliothèque Noubar.)
Map of Republic of Armenia

GEOGRAPHY

GEORGIA

AZERBAIJAN

ARmenia

YEREVAN

TURKEY

IRAN

AZERBAIJAN (Naxcivan)

Sevan

Gyumri

Vanadzor
(Kirovakan)

Sevana

Lich

Angeghakoti

Sot'k

Kapan
In response, Turkish Ambassador to Israel Kemal Oksem and Consul of Jerusalem Hüssi Gurjan Turkoglu were summoned to the Israeli Foreign Ministry. On May 14, the US officially moved its embassy from Tel Aviv to Jerusalem, thus expressing its consent to proclaim Jerusalem as the capital of Israel. The Palestinians in their turn insist that Eastern Jerusalem is the capital of their state, which is occupied by Israel. At this stage of the Turkish-Israeli tension, we also witnessed the speculation over the Armenian Genocide recognition issue. How would you evaluate this and whether Armenia has tools to prevent it? Of course, in relations between the two countries it is unacceptable to use the national tragedy of a third country or people. The Armenian Genocide (also known as the Armenian Holocaust) was the systematic mass extermination and expulsion of 1.5 million ethnic Armenians within the Ottoman Empire (most of whom were citizens) by the Ottoman government from approximately 1914 to 1923. The starting date is conventionally held to be 24 April 1915, the day that Ottoman authorities rounded up, arrested, and deported from Constantinople (now Istanbul) to the region of Angora (Ankara), 235 to 270 Armenian intellectuals and community